263 Years of Loudoun’s Courthouse Complex

Five Expansion Projects to the Courthouse Complex

• 1758-1761
• 1809-1893
• 1893-Present
• 1999-2004
• 2020-2024

Types of Expansion

1) Building a new courthouse
2) Replace existing courthouse, and renovations
3) Expansion of current courthouse structures.

Loudoun never lost a courthouse to fire, war or environmental conditions.

Third Courthouse 1894 – Present

“The present court-house was built eighty years ago. Its rests upon the ground and part of the floor is brick. The effluvia of all these years was soaked into the floors and sides, and on a damp day when the crowd has gathered, the atmosphere that court litigants, lawyers and jurors have to breathe is simply fearful. It is an unhealthy place and year after year, of course, has gotten more so. Besides this the ceilings are tumbling down and the walls are cracked. Something has to be done.”

J.B McCabe, The Mirror, February 15, 1894

This picture dates after 1906 and is one of the earliest photographs of the third courthouse. The courthouse is still used for court and programs.

Plan of Leesburg, 1937

The courthouse lot was 1.5 acres.

The Clerk of Circuit Court and County Government Expansion 1950s-1970s

By the 1950s, the 1834 academy (The building on the left side of the above drawing) was too small for the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The new addition would mirror the 1834 academy building and the two structures were connected by a hallway.

The County purchased the Leesburg Inn in the 1950s for county and court office space. The Building was removed in 1974 to make way for the new County Building. In 1975, the County of Loudoun opened a new 36,000 sq. ft. building to house the county’s offices and the Board of Supervisors.

Fourth Courthouse Expansion 1990s-2004

“In 1990 it became clear that the Old Courthouse and court facilities were woefully inadequate. In response the Loudoun County government hired the architectural firm of Davis and Carter to make a ten year forecast of the Courts’ space needs and to prepare a campus plan for renovation.”

Court expansion from 1999 to 2004 provided further courtrooms and office space to the county’s three courts: Circuit Court, Juvenile and Domestic Relations and General District Court. The former Loudoun County Office building was expanded and renovated to provide more space for the Clerk of the Circuit Court, a Law Library and agencies supporting the court system. It was during this expansion that space was provided to establish the clerk’s Historic Records Division in 2004.
