

NAVIGATING SLAVERY: THE GOOSE CREEK MEETING AND THE HOPKINS FAMILY

Saturday, February 25th
2 p.m.

Goose Creek Meeting
18204 Lincoln Road,
Purcellville, VA

Goose Creek Meeting House
(photo courtesy of Carolyn Unger)

Johns Hopkins
(photo courtesy of www.hopkinsmedicine.org)

The prominent Hopkins family of Maryland were Quakers, and the Hopkins Brothers operated a large wholesale business. They interacted with enslavers, had business transactions that extended into Loudoun County, and were represented by Loudoun lawyer, John Janney.

Scholars from Johns Hopkins University and the Clerk of the Circuit Court Historic Records Division discuss the family's connections to slavery, the Goose Creek Meeting, and Loudoun County.

Free admission. Seating is limited.

Presented by:

- Gary Clemens, Clerk of the Circuit Court
- Edward C. Papenfuse, Master in Liberal Arts Program, JHU
- Sydney Van Morgan, International Studies Program, JHU
- Goose Creek Friends
- The Black History Committee of the Friends of the Thomas Balch Library